our mission

The Why I Love Myself (WILM) project is dedicated to empowering young girls and gender nonbinary individuals by fostering self-worth, resilience, and confidence during their formative middle school years. WILM seeks to create a supportive environment where students can explore and embrace their unique identities. Led by college students from CU Boulder, this initiative is also centered around mentorship, allowing students to connect with relatable role models to guide them through practical strategies in self-love, body positivity, friendship skills, speaking skills, and personal growth. By building a strong foundation of self-esteem and offering a community of encouragement, WILM aims to positively impact their mental health and emotional well-being, inspiring them to grow into confident, empowered individuals.

Through twice monthly workshops at the Girls Athletic Leadership School (GALS), the project will focus on fostering self-love, body positivity, empowerment, public speaking, friendship skills, healthy habits, and resilience. Each workshop is designed to equip young girls with practical strategies to navigate the pressures they face and be able to manage them while also encouraging empowerment and personal growth.

We are hoping to work with local businesses in order to raise money for this program. Money raised would go to providing craft materials, snacks, transportation, t-shirts/other affiliated merchandise, and other things to make sure that this program can have the most benefit to the girls we are serving.

We are hoping that you can join us in this mission with a percentage day or another similar event that we can work together doing. We look forward to hearing your input on how we can work with you! We cannot do this without your support!

why i love myself

Facilitated by members in the Leeds Scholars program, this after school program is focused on being an adolescent - and how beautiful that is. A program run by students, for students.

This program runs from mid-January to late March. The program runs weekly with college students facilitating every other week, focusing on what we think is important to learn and know as a adolescent.

We can't wait to get to know you!
